Eating Well on a Budget

A healthy food plan is important for your health and well-being. It can change your mood, strength, weight and how well you think and feel. But at a time when so many of us are out of work, facing an unsure future or living on a tight budget, finding food that is healthy and low cost can be tough.

Along with a lack of time, having a fixed budget is a factor in having a healthy food plan. When you're hungry and pushed for time and money, fast food can seem like the best choice. While fast food is often tasty and filling, it can also have a lot of calories, sugar and lack nutrients. And despite what you may have been led to believe, eating fast food is rarely cheaper than eating healthy, home-cooked meals.

Whether you're at school, living on your own, or raising a family on a budget, with useful tips you can enjoy healthy food without breaking the bank. The more you focus on buying local food, making meals at home and cutting waste, the healthier and tastier your food plan will be, the better you will feel and the more money you will save.

Tip 1: Plan ahead

Saving money on food involves changing your shopping habits, removing waste and focusing on healthier choices—and that can call for a little planning ahead. There are a few websites and smartphone apps that can help you make and track a budget for food and groceries. Or you can simply start with a well-thought-out shopping list. Sticking to a shopping list can help you avoid unplanned spending that can quickly break your budget.

Tip 2: Make smart food choices

Choosing healthy food over processed meals doesn't have to raise your weekly budget. In fact, it's worth remembering that junk food often costs you much more than the price on the sticker. A poor food plan can take a toll on your health, leading to higher health care costs, as well as low strength and productivity. Making smart food choices, though, can save you money and protect your health.

Tip 3: Shop wisely

The neighborhood grocery store is not the only place to shop. Sometimes other stores can offer much cheaper ways to buy healthy food. Warehouse or club stores like Costco offer great deals for seasonal produce, and foods such as chicken and cheese. To reduce waste, freeze large portions in smaller, more workable sizes.

Tip 4: Find cheaper protein choices

Your body relies on protein for many of its jobs. It's an important energy source and supports your mood and brain function. Affording some meat and fish sources of protein, though, can put a real strain on your food budget. By making a few adjustments, you can save money and still enjoy plenty of protein in your food plan. Add rice, pasta, fresh or frozen veggies, beans, or whole grains to meat to make tasty, filling meals. Mix ground meat with black beans in tacos, add whole grains to meatloaf or add lots of veggies to a chicken stir fry.

Tip 5: Stretch your money when you cook

Making large portions of food to use over many meals can save you time and energy as well as money. Most leftovers make very tasty burritos. Simply put each thing into a tortilla shell (try to get whole grain) with a little cheese or salsa and enjoy.

Tip 6: Make sweet treats healthy and low cost

Eating well on a budget doesn't mean denying yourself a treat or cutting out all desserts. Most of us crave sweets from time to time. But instead of costly desserts packed with sugar, such as cakes, cookies, and muffins, there are healthier ways to please a sweet tooth. Freeze your own 100% fruit juice popsicles. If you don't have a popsicle tray, use an ice-cube tray with plastic spoons as handles.

Regular Well Child Visits Lead to Less Sick Visits

Studies show that completing Well Child checkups, getting kids routine care and the vaccines they need to stay healthy, lowers illnesses. One of the common illnesses reduced was ear infections, due to getting the pneumococcal vaccine.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Texas (BCBSTX) wants to help you keep your children healthy. From birth until the age of three, there are 10 scheduled well visits to check growth and development and to get the needed vaccines required for your child. At the age of three, well visits decrease to one time a year.

At BCBSTX, well visits are called Well Child visits and are at no cost to you. These visits are very important in keeping your child healthy and happy. Please make sure to schedule and go to all recommended Well Child checkups.

Seasonal Flu Shot

What is a flu shot?

Flu shots help protect against the four flu viruses that research shows will be most common during the coming season. Most flu shots are given with a needle, most often in the arm, but there is also a nose spray. Check with your doctor to find out which is best for you.

Who should and who should not get a flu shot?

Everyone six months of age and older should get a flu shot each season unless rare special cases apply. The shot helps to prevent the flu and it is vital for people who are at higher risk of getting the flu.

Some shots are not recommended for certain groups of people. Check with your doctor to find out your fitness for the flu shot.
